Specialise your creative practice. Make work that matters.

In this music performance project, you'll develop a substantial recorded work, such as an EP or album, a band or ensemble recording, a producer-performer piece, a sync-ready or catalogue track, or a genre- or scene-based release. Supported by a structured curriculum, you'll research, practise, produce and refine your work while developing your artistic identity and professional positioning.

Guided by experienced Collarts educators and industry mentors, you'll make informed creative decisions about sound and production; refine your repertoire; and create a coherent recorded aesthetic to achieve industry-standard recordings for public release. Graduate with a release-ready body of recorded work, a clear artistic narrative and the professional materials to sustain career momentum beyond study.
